

Kocho Project Kaleidoscope

→ Stefan Baldey

Product Development Director

What is Project Kaleidoscope?

- End-user focused
- Single pane of glass
- Reporting
- Branded
- Context

Key challenges

- Inundated 1st line support tickets
- Delays in access and software provisioning
- JML Lifecycles
 - Onboarding experience
 - Terminated user risk
 - Licence bleed out
- Non-HR accounts
- Shadow IT
- Cost

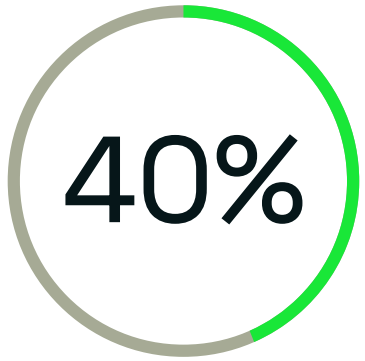

Kaleidoscope is here

- Simple, branded UI – Aligns with your company's look and feel
- Single pane of glass – All apps, access packages, and Privileged roles and groups (PIM)
- Ease of self-service – Request, approve, and manage apps and access without raising a ticket
- Lightning-fast setup process – Live in under 30 minutes

The Value Delivered

reduction in first-line tickets

- Reduced Shadow IT through better app visibility
- Full adoption of privileged workflows in a multi-cloud environment
- Positive feedback from new starters

The portal

The screenshot shows the Kocho portal interface. On the left is a sidebar with a logo for 'Damask Holdings' (1 member) and a list of navigation items: Identity Management, Dashboard (highlighted), Applications, Request, Manage, Administration, Members, Reporting, Resources, and Settings. The main content area has a top header with 'Home > Workspace' and the 'Kocho' logo. Below this is a welcome message: 'Good afternoon, welcome back' with a sub-header 'Here's an overview of your workspace and recent activity'. A summary section shows 'Resources: 66' (Total resources available) and 'Last Updated: Jun 11, 02:26 PM' (Most recent sync). The dashboard features six tiles: Applications (See all of the applications you currently have access to), Request (See all of the resources that you can request), Access (See all of the PIM groups that you are an owner of), Approvals (See all of the approvals that you have pending), Requests (See all of your current and past requests), and Account (Manage your account settings and preferences). The bottom left of the sidebar shows the user profile for 'Stefan Baldey' (stefan.baldey@kochoide...).
